The members of the Class of 1941 enrolled at West Central for the first time in the fall of 1938. They made up one of the largest freshman groups in the history of the school. Not all of these people are still members of the class, but other students, who have transferred from various high schools, have come to take their places. The Class of 1941 has undertaken several projects in its three years of existence. During the junior year, the class sponsored the annual Junior-Senior Banquet, the theme for which was built around a music shop. Publication of the 1941 Moccasin and the presentation of the Senior Class Play in the spring are the projects which the Senior Class is undertaking this year.

Members of the Junior Class will be hosts to the Seniors and Advanced Class students at the annual Junior-Senior Banquet and Dance which will be held March 27. This is an event to which everyone is looking forward. The Junior Class has made an enviable record. It succeeded in earning enough points to be declared the winner in the field meet, and also won first place at the Homecoming pep meeting. Members of the class have taken part in various school activities including debate, music and stock judging.

The Freshman Class

Newcomers on the campus this year are members of the Class of 1943. As a group, they have proved to be a wide-awake class, having taken an active part in many school activities. They defeated the juniors in the annual football game, but were forced to accept defeat at the hands of the juniors in the field meet. The basketball team, which is coached by Mr. Pederson, will compete in the class tournament which will be held in the spring. The ranks of the class were augmented after Christmas by twenty students who enrolled in school for the second semester.

PREPARING FOR CITIZENSHIP

THROUGH COUNSEL..

Earl H. Pederson, loving husband and father, friend and teacher, has been removed from our midst here at West Central. It is not for us as mortal men to understand fully life and death. We but know that we have parted for a time with one whom we had learned to love and respect as a man of high ideals, unquestioned integrity and possessed of great ambition and energy to carry forward his purposes in life.

Students knew him as an able teacher. His good nature, coupled with the faculty of demanding the best in everyone, won for him the cooperation of all in his classes. As a preceptor in Junior Hall, he was more than a supervisor in charge; he was a big brother and friend to all. He did his regular job faithfully and well, and he took his full share in the extra tasks called for from the faculty.

Hundreds of years ago, these words were written, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith." We who knew Earl Pederson knew that he lived life cheerfully and vigorously. He kept the faith with his family, his friends and his Creator. He has finished the course in one sense, but in another, his memory will ever remain to encourage and inspire those who knew him. To you, his wife Eleanor, his son Bruce, and his daughter, Diane Kay, we extend our sincere thank you for having shared him with us during these past two and three quarter years. May his memory be a guiding force in the lives of all of us in the years to come!

Therton H. Tenshe

An international service organization to which I belong has for its administrative theme these words, "Citizenship Responsibility, the Price of Liberty." In these very grave times it seems that the liberties of individuals as citizens are being shoved aside throughout the world. We here in the United States enjoy material blessings far beyond those of citizens of other countries. More important than these material blessings are those liberties conferred upon us as citizens. We have freedom of speech, the right to worship as we see fit; our newspapers are allowed to express their honest convictions, and our system of education is not compelled to be a propaganda disseminating agency.

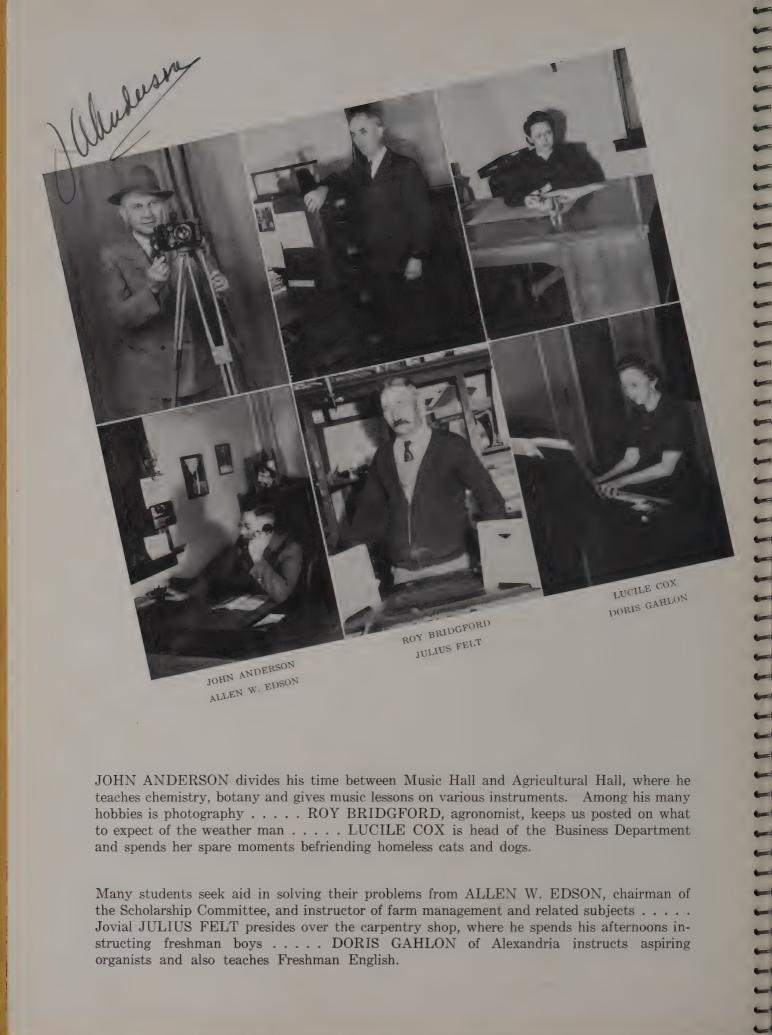

Such liberties are not something to be taken lightly in these troubled times. Other people have sacrificed in order that we might enjoy them. You and I must not make the mistake of thinking that they are ours to keep without some responsibility on our part. Citizenship responsibility is indeed the price of liberty. As members of the West Central School of Agriculture student body, you have had certain responsibilities as citizens of the school community. As you take your respective places in the world of today and tomorrow, these responsibilities will increase. Will you accept them and do your share as citizens to preserve the democratic ideals upon which this nation is built?

My hope for each of you as a member of the class of 1941 is that your school life has better fitted you to accept these responsibilities and that as the years go by, you can honestly say, "I have paid the price of liberty by fulfilling my citizenship responsibilities."

Learning To Take It

"I am for the winner." Very often we have heard that remark. Of course we all want to be represented by a winning team. We all want to bask in the reflected glory a winning athletic team brings to our school. I sometimes wonder if, after all, the losing team does not gain as much or even more than the winning team. It has been said that any one can win, but it takes a gentleman to be a good loser.

In our athletic contests we learn both, how to win and how to lose. We learn to take it. It has been my observation that often a team composed of the most deserving of boys is not a winner; whereas at times a team composed of fellows who do not put forth much effort toward living up to the rules and ethics of the game seems to win with ease. One gets as much out of a thing as one puts into it. If things come easily we are likely to become soft so that when adversity does strike, as it will at some time or another, it gets us down. We can't take it.

The immediate benefits gained by being a member of an athletic team are far outweighed by the benefits which show up in later years. If we learn to take the hitter with the sweet while we are in school we will be better able to show up in later years. If we learn to take the bitter with the sweet while we are in school, we will be better able to do so in later life. Therein lies the reason for wanting to be a member of a team—any team.

ON THE GRIDIRON

The football season opened with a bang when a squad of between thirty and forty men reported for practice on Wednesday, October 2. After three days' practice they met the veteran alumni footballers, and managed to take the game by a score of 20 to 7.

The following week the Junior College team from Sauk Centre came to the campus doped to win from Coach Heine's men. However, it was found that when the final whistle blew, the West Central Aggies had snared another victory to the tune of 18 to 0.

The Morris High School team provided the opposition for the game on the Aggie field Friday, October 19. What the high school men lacked in weight and experience they made up for in speed and spirit. The game was an exciting battle from the kick off to the last whistle. But the Aggies emerged with a 6-point lead, the final score being 13 to 7.

On October 26, the Aggie men were scheduled to meet their second college foe, the Concordia freshmen. Our boys showed much improvement in their playing from previous games, but were compelled to bow to the Concordia yearlings by a 12 to 6 score.

The Grand Rapids Aggies came to Morris for the Homecoming game on Saturday, November 2. After scoring a touchdown early in the first quarter, Morris kicked off to Grand Rapids, who then fumbled while attempting to kick out of danger. Recovering the fumble our boys converted it into a second touchdown. Our team scored a third touchdown in the second quarter by a pass completed to Smith, who played left end.

After a disastrous first period the Grand Rapids team rallied in the second half to make a nip and tuck battle until the closing quarter when Drever, aided by good blocking ran back a Grand Rapids punt for a touchdown and Skrien later intercepted a forward pass and put across another touchdown. Sufficient extra points were made to bring the final count 32 to 7, a fine contribution for a happy homecoming.

During the final week of practice colder weather, combined with a desire to retain "Ossie," the wooden pig trophy, sent the Morris men through some of the snappiest scrimmage and signal drills of the season. The Crookston field, frozen rough, and a homecoming crowd made up the setting for the final game of the season. After a scoreless first quarter, Crookston attacked from the air. Pushing down the field with well-aimed passes, they scored the first touchdown but were unable to make their extra point. This tended to stir the fight in the Morris team. With driving power on the part of "Muss" Nielsen, behind excellent line play and blocking, Morris came back in the same quarter to score a touchdown of their own and take the lead by making their extra point. The first half ended shortly afterward, with Morris on the top of a 7 to 6 score.

As always, Crookston came back after the half with a rush that put the ball deep into Morris territory. Believing that they had gone far enough, Skrien intercepted a pass behind the goal line and with remarkable blocking, tore 100 yards for a touchdown. Morris then converted making the final score 14 to 6. Coach Heine and the team were especially pleased with the results of this game, since it marks the first victory for Morris on the Crookston field since 1928, and also because it placed our team in the topmost position in the conference.

CAGE SEASON

Coach Heine looked even more gloomy than usual when it came time for the 1941 basket-ball season to get under way. With only a small number of men from whom to choose, and just seven of last year's squad back, prospects looked none too bright.

Our boys got off to a slow start, meeting defeat at the hands of the Sauk Centre Junior College and the Donnelly Independents, the latter by one basket made in the last few seconds of the game. The game played at Brookings on December 13 gave our team the first victory of the season. The Brookings team was vanquished by a 44 - 8 score.

After a two-week Christmas vacation the boys improved considerably in practice, but when they met the taller, sure-of-foot St. Mary's men of Morris they were forced to accept the short end of a 36 - 30 score.

With a look of determination for revenge in their eyes for the defeat at the hands of the Aggies in football, the Morris High School Team came out to play the Aggies on January 20. In a gym packed almost to capacity our boys met their rivals, who had the advantage of height and a better record of games won. The first half was anybody's game, ending 19 - 15 in favor of the high school. In the second half the high school boys took the lead and stretched it to a 49 - 24 victory.

On the week-end of January 24 our team saw action at both St. Paul and Grand Rapids in the first conference games of the season. Our boys came back from their three-day trip with one defeat and one victory to their credit, having lost to St. Paul and won from Grand Rapids. Two nights later they met the Sauk Centre Junior College Team for the second time, and in this encounter furnished stiffer opposition for the Sauk Centre boys. Coming from behind in the third quarter, it looked almost as though our boys were going to add another victory to their record. However, the Sauk Centre boys came back in the last quarter to pile up a 49 - 34 score. The next two games, with Crookston and with the Montevideo Junior College, proved to be victories for our team. At the time of this writing five games on the schedule have not yet been played.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross country running is an innovation in the West Central School sports program, having been introduced this year. Mr. Edson, who ran on the University of Minnesota cross country and track teams when he was a student at the University, acted as coach of the team.

Twenty boys responded to Mr. Edson's call for cross country runners, issued early in the school year. Out of this group a team of five men and one alternate were chosen. Team members were Edisteen Strand, George Amundson, Harry Flatin, Kenneth Hanson, and Robert Thiel. Valerian Piekarski was chosen as alternate.

Members of the track team made two trips this year. The first excursion was to Crookston, on November 9, where they were defeated by a more experienced Northwest School team by the extremely small margin of one point. The next week, on November 16, the team went to St. Paul for the Minnesota Agricultural School Invitational meet in which the Agricultural Schools at St. Paul, Crookston, and Morris competed, as well as teams from Carleton, Hamline and Macalester Colleges. Among the Agricultural Schools St. Paul won first place; Morris was second, and Crookston third. The event offered the Morris team an opportunity to make up for the defeat of the previous week at the hands of Crookston, and they took full advantage of it. In both events, the boys made a good showing for their first year of competition.

Four of the six members who competed this year will be back next year. Among them is George Amundson, who was the fastest man on the squad, placing first at Crookston in the dual meet, and third in St. Paul. Aspirants for positions on next year's cross country team will engage in spring practice as well, and it is believed that with the experience they have gained this year, coupled with increased interest in the student body, the team will have a chance to make an even better showing next fall.

The interscholastic athletic program will be culminated on March 1, when we will be hosts to swimming and wrestling teams from the other Agricultural Schools of the state. Also on that date, the basket ball team will meet the Grand Rapids quintette in the final game of the season.

INTRAMURAL

CO-CAPTAINS
Cleo Dyer, Arlo Gilbertson

In keeping with the belief that students profit from participation in competitive athletic events, the school has adopted a program of intramural sports as well as interscholastic competition. The sound of the referee's whistle issuing from the football field or from the gymnasium, depending upon the season, is testimony of the fact that the gridiron and the playing court are constantly in use. Class basketball teams, in an effort to prepare for the class basketball tournament held early in March begin practicing as soon as the football season is over. Girls as well as boys take part in the tournament, which probably arouses more interest than any other event during the school year. There is also a swimming schedule which gives every student in school a chance to enjoy the swimming pool.

The freshman-junior football game was played on November 4 on a field thoroughly soaked by almost a week of rain. The day of the game was also a dark and drizzly one, a condition which caused much fumbling on the part of both teams. The first quarter was played mostly in freshman territory, with the juniors showing a great deal of line power and speed. In the second quarter the juniors attempted a passing attack, which proved to be a fatal mistake. Vincent Boerboom, captain of the freshman team, intercepted a pass and raced 70 yards for the one and only touchdown of the game. The try for point failed. In the second half, the juniors came back with more power than before but were held off by the hard-fighting freshman team. The final score was 6 - 0.

From the Diary of a Senior Student

October 2, 1940

It surely seems good to be back again on the campus. All the old gang seem to be here—almost all of the faculty, too. It has been a grand day and everyone has made the most of it. Everyone is all smiles and seems to be glad to see all of his friends again.

October 7, 1940

First football game of the season was played today. Quite a few alumni were back to try to win from the Aggie team, but we fooled them. It was a wonderfully nice day for the game. I surely hope it stays nice for a while. The freshmen and juniors have begun to practice, too, getting ready for their game that will be played in a few weeks. Both of the class teams look pretty good. It should be quite a battle.

This morning it looked as though our campus had been invaded by a group of Turks. All the freshmen had towels tied around their heads. The girls all wore housecoats. At first I couldn't quite figure out what it was all about. Then I remembered that it is freshman initiation day. The freshmen were all good sports about it, though. I remember when we were in the same predicament—two years ago. We wore towels, too, and had to wear our clothes backward.

Today was the day for the corn husking contest, too. School was dismissed at 2:50, and we all went out to the corn field. Those boys who were in it really looked as though they were working hard. They husked for 40 minutes. Everyone was there—all the students and all the teachers. "Eddie" Strand came out on top. I snapped a picture of Ing Buhl for the Moccasin. He was one of the contestants, too. The winners are going to get a trip to the National Cornhusking Contest at New Ulm. I wish I were a corn-husker.

October 21, 1940

Today was the day of the annual Freshman-Junior Field Meet. This is the second year that we've had a field meet. Almost everyone was down on the football field to see it, including the faculty. This year the laurels went to the Junior Class, who won from the freshmen in most of the events. The tug-of-war was the highlight of the whole afternoon. The rope kept breaking. Marvin Hogan and Gordon Van Den Einde were high scorers for the juniors. Mr. Anderson took some moving pictures that I hope we get a chance to see. It was a perfect day for pictures.

The weather man is still on our side, and the students are certainly taking advantage of the nice weather while it lasts. They can be seen strolling around the campus or soaking up the sunshine on the Girls' Dormitory steps at most any hour of the day. I hope that the pictures I took today turn out to be good.

October 24, 1940

My arm is so sore tonight I can scarcely write. The doctors from the University were here yesterday and today. I had to be vaccinated for small pox and had to go over there early this morning to have the doctor look at it. Anyway, mine certainly "took"; there's no doubt about that.

November 11, 1940

What a blizzard! I can't remember any storm that compares to the one we had today. We couldn't even see the buildings on the campus. The boys from Junior Hall and the other dormitories all joined hands and formed a "human chain" to get over to the Dining Hall tonight. No one was allowed to go out of the buildings tonight. I don't think anyone would want to, anyway. I'm sure I wouldn't.

December 14, 1940

Tonight I went to the Advanced Class Play, "The Enemy". It was a play about war and made me realize more than ever how terrible war must be.

January 6, 1941

Here I am, back in school again after a two-weeks vacation. It was hard—getting up for an 8 o'clock class this morning. Everyone has been talking about the good times he had over vacation and showing off Christmas presents. Graduation is just twelve weeks off now. I hate to think about all I have to do between now and that time. I have practically the same program as I had last semester, and I lived through that. I suppose I can survive this semester, too.

There are about 25 new students here for the second semester. They look as though they were lost today, but it won't be long before they'll feel as much at home as the rest of us.

I've made a New Year's Resolution that I'm going to try to make the Honor Roll this semester. I have only three more chances. Tomorrow night I start studying!

Everyone is working hard these days on activities of all kinds. The second semester rush is on; that's for sure. The debate squad will meet Brookings sometime next month, and the people who are out for that are really working. The gym is a busy place now, too. All the classes, even the Specials, have a class team. I hope our class team comes through in the tournament. We didn't do so well last year.

Some of the Moccasin Board members have gone down to the city this week-end. It's queer that they always happen to go the week-end that our teams play down at St. Paul. The whole Moccasin Board is going to St. Cloud, some time in March, to see the book in the process of being printed. I'm looking forward to that trip. We're going through the reformatory, too. I hope they don't keep us there.

The grain and stock judging teams left today for the Red River Valley Shows at Crookston. The stock judging team was going to Fargo too.

Today one of the boys gave me a piece of cake that he had made in his home ec. class. Those boys are certainly enthusiastic about that class. They always come out of the Home Economics Building smiling and looking well fed. The cake was really good, too. I surely wouldn't mind being in that class myself.

February 6, 1941

Try-outs for the Senior Class Play were held today. I tried out, but I don't know yet whether I'll be chosen. It sounds like it's a good play—a mystery. The Sixth Key is the name.

February 15, 1941

Today we finished our panels for the Moccasin. It's almost ready to go to press now—should be all ready in just a few more days. I can hardly wait to see the finished product. It has taken a lot of work and time but when I think of the fact that some day I can look at this annual and say to myself, "I helped make this Moccasin" it gives me a feeling of having accomplished something. I hope that the Moccasin Board of next year will have the same satisfaction that we feel from having worked together as a group, and that they have as much fun doing it as we have had. More power to them. Now there's nothing to do but wait until the books are delivered—about March 22, I think. Here's hoping the students will like it.
